WHY, INDEED?

He Announced His Determination to Become a Woman's Rights Man.

"What I want to know is this," he said apologetically to the live stock editor, who was busy on a leader entitled "A Plea For Higher Art:" "Why shouldn't my wife have the same rights, social, political and industrial, as I have!"

"There is no adequate reason for de-priving her of them," indulgently replied

"Why shouldn't she have an equal voice with me in the affairs of her country?" "Why, indeed?" echoed the scribe, commencing a new paragraph, with just a tinge of impatience upon his fluent and classic tongue.

"Why shouldn't she go to the polls," continued the man, with his pants tucked into his boots, argumentatively, "and put herself on record for this or that princi-
